MARKET COMMENTARY

International developed equities rose in September as U.S.-China trade tensions appeared to ease and central banks took measures to stimulate economic growth. Developed European stock markets generally rose in U.S. dollar terms, although a weaker euro versus the dollar reduced returns to U.S. investors. Eurozone markets were lifted by European Central Bank President Mario Draghi's announcement of new stimulus measures. UK shares also rose as worries of a no-deal Brexit lessened. British Prime Minister Boris Johnson's attempt to suspend parliament for several weeks prior to the UK's expected October 31 departure from the European Union was deemed unlawful by the UK's supreme court. Developed Asian markets were mostly positive, though Hong Kong shares slipped. The city's chief executive withdrew a controversial extradition bill, but demonstrators continued to demand other changes from the government. Japanese shares outperformed the region. At the end of the month, President Trump and Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe signed a limited, tariff-reducing trade deal that takes effect at the beginning of 2020. Both countries are expected to work on a wider-reaching trade agreement at some point next year. Emerging markets stocks rose over the month. Emerging Asian markets were broadly positive. South Korean shares surged and Indian shares also advanced, as the central bank reduced interest rates and the government announced corporate tax rate reductions to boost growth. Chinese stocks were fairly flat, while Indonesia stocks dropped. In emerging Europe, Turkish shares surged, as the lira appreciated versus the dollar and declining inflation enabled the central bank to reduce its key short-term interest rate. Russian shares also rose. In Latin America, Argentine shares climbed, as the equity market recouped part of its deep August losses.

Sector performance in the MSCI Europe, Australasia, and Far East (EAFE) Index was mostly positive. Financials, energy, and materials were the top performers, while consumer staples was the only sector to produce negative returns.

Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance. Numbers may not total due to rounding; all other numbers are percentages. Analysis represents the total performance of the portfolio as calculated by the FactSet attribution model and is inclusive of other assets that will not receive a classification assignment in the detailed structure shown. Returns will not match official T. Rowe Price performance because FactSet uses different exchange rate sources and does not capture intra-day trading. Performance for each security is obtained in the local currency and, if necessary, is converted using an exchange rate determined by an independent third party. Definitions

Active Share is a holdings based measure of active management representing the percentage of a portfolio's holdings that differ from those in its benchmark. Compared to tracking error, which measures the standard deviation of the difference in a manager's returns versus the Benchmark returns, Active Share allows investors to get a clearer understanding of what a manager is doing to drive performance, rather than drawing conclusions from observed returns. The greater the difference between the asset composition of a product and its benchmark, the greater the active share is.
